Foam Board	Most common mounting material. Least expensive media to mount prints. Lightweight, low cost to ship. Available in various thickness, 3/16" to 1/2". Available in white (standard) and black
Gatorboard	A close second to foam board in popularity. Looks like foam board, and is similar in weight. Available in white and black, 3/16" and 1/2". More rigid than foam board Less likely to warp in humid conditions.
Sintra	A hard plastic material. Flexible, depending on thicknesses. Available in many thicknesses (2mm to 1/2") Heavier than foam and gatorboard. Water resistant (good for outdoor use)
Plasticor	A stout corrugated plastic material. Stiff, but bends like cardboard. Once creased it will continue to bend in that particular spot. Water resistant (good for outdoor use) ¼" thick

Adhesives	Mounting involves adhering a print to the substrate. Adhesive has to be used. We offer two adhesive processes to mount prints.
Spray Adhesive	Least expensive way to mount prints. Works well for most applications. Not recommended for humid areas
Pressure Sensitive and Heat Activated Mounting	More expensive than spray adhesive. Extremely strong bond (if you try to peel print off board, paper would rip before peeling off the board). Recommended for long term projects.
